

Telemarketing should be opt-in rather than opt-out. I do not agree that there should be any exemptions to the national do-not-call list. That will only open up for too much debate what falls in and out of the exemptions. We should have the right to a quiet night to eat dinner. Unplugging the phone is not the solution to this because a family emergency might happen and the telephone is needed. Please do not be tricked by the telemarketing companies - they would not want it personally at home.
